

COMING OF AGE

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

To us, the theme „Coming of Age“ represents the blossoming of something new, it is the recognition that every beginning is the ending of something else. Through our theme, we hope to invite reflection on the maturation of ideas and disciplines, highlighting challenges like bureaucratization and the loss of alternative perspectives (e.g. ground-breaking research or perhaps new technologies that are able to paint our world in a different light). On a personal level, the theme encourages creative submissions about self-reflection, academic growth, and psychological development, offering a broad exploration of individual and collective growth, perhaps even transformation. We would be very interested in papers that explore questions like: How have I changed since I started studying? How do I take care of my elders? How can I characterize the time we live in now? Do I have a stable narrative identity?

CYBERCRIME'S LOSS OF INNOCENCE

Cybercrime, once associated with idealistic visions of freedom, exploration, and boundary-breaking innovation, has matured into a global threat prompting extensive regulation. Initially emerging from a hacker ethos advocating openness, decentralization, and technological creativity, cybercrime now evokes complex, bureaucratic international frameworks and pressing debates about digital security and freedoms.

This essay examines the maturation of cybercrime and its regulatory responses, focusing on how optimistic ideals surrounding technology have gradually eroded in the face of increasingly sophisticated cyber threats. It analyzes how regulatory measures have developed or stagnated amidst rapid technological advancement, weighing their effectiveness and implications for innovation and civil liberties.

The earth dry and cracking. Something about to break.

TONGUE-TILLING

The tongue your parents had I only touched a single time in a village with a sole telephone pole Cracking, while your uncle showed me where we hid during the war and after and even now.
The cows with crooked horns—is that why they call the city
Кривой Пор?
Or Кривий Pir, rather, but I can't even pronounce that the way your parents did.
An army of them.
The bells, the cows, the cracking graves.

Do you still cross yourself, every time you pass them?
Do you still tear the weeds from between the marble, sweating and tugging all day long?
I didn't see the change you promised me you'd brought.
I was too young to help you out, you said.
I touched the marble crushing my father's father after death that day, a tongue of stone.

The earth dry and cracking. Something about to break.
